Parsons Faces Water Shortage

Mayor Declares Local Emergency

PARSONS - Mayor John Kenney stated on Saturday that 'If the people of Parsons hope to have enough water to drink, they will be forced to forego washing of cars, or watering gardens and lawns. Residents are asked to use minimum of water for laundry and general household uses. Mayor Kenney stated that as soon as the supply of water in the reservoir is increased the people of Parsons will be notified of the emergency Mayor Kenney stated also that he received a letter from Representative Harley O. Staggers on the resolution for a survey and plans for flood control measures on Cheat River and tributaries, that has been authorized by Congress. The survey and plans will be made with particular reference to flood control on Shaver's Fork. Blackfork, Cheat River and in the vicinity of Parsons. Staggers said he is hopeful that the survey and plans can be completed immediately so that he can ask for the necessary appropriations to be provided for the project.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT TO TELEVISION SET OWNERS!

In order to give our customers better and more complete service on their television sets, we have recently purchased a Raytronic Beam Analyzer. This equipment is specifically designed for testing television picture tubes and affecting repairs in about 80 percent of conditions causing picture tube failure. Many years of research have gone into the development of this machine and has proved very successful both in field and laboratory use. Our experience with this analyzer during the past week has been even more successful than we had hoped and from this we know we can save our customers many, many dollars by repairing your picture tube at a very small cost compared to the price of a new

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT TO TELEVISION SET OWNERS!

In order to give our customers better and more complete service on their television sets, we have recently purchased a Raytronic Beam Analyzer. This equipment is specifically designed for testing television picture tubes and affecting repairs in about 80 percent of conditions causing picture tube failure. Many years of research have gone into the development of this machine and has proved very successful both in field and laboratory use. Our experience with this analyzer during the past week has been even more successful than we had hoped and from this we know we can save our customers many, many dollars by repairing your picture tube at a very small cost compared to the price of a new

Perhaps your picture tube is still in fair condition, but has signs of failure such as:

- 1-Require more than 27 seconds to come to full brilliance after set is turned on 2-Picture has a gray or smoky cast even after
- extended warm up period 3-Picture does not remain in focus
- 4-Flashing or dark stripes across face of picture tube contrast controls are advanced

- 5-Picture blooms or grows larger as brilliance or
- 6-Trailing streaks or fuzz around white areas in picture
- 7-Picture too dark
- 8-Picture too light
- 9-Picture alternately dark and light

Any of the above conditions indicate trouble in the picture tube or its circuits and should be repaired as quickly as possible or complete failure may be the result. We are equipped to handle any size, make or model of television set so don't hesitate to call us for service.

Channel Swimming Off To Good Start

The 1955 English Channel swimming season is off to a good start now that the youngest person ever to swim that rough, chilly, and tide-swept stretch of water has made an east-west crossing in 14 hours 36 minutes. The youngest person is a girl at that-17 years old, Marilyn Bell by name, home port Toronto.

She can't lay claim to a new speed record for getting across the strait from France to England. Brenda Fisher of Britain, who did it in 12 hours 43 minutes back in 1951, still holds the distinction of having made the fastest east-west crossing. But Marilyn need have no regrets on that score, since everybody knows that the channel currents are capricious. It takes luck to swim the channel fast; it takes physical stamina and courage to swim it

Other swimmers are waiting to have a try at this challenging swim. They will start when they feel they are in shape for it and when the conditions are as favorable as may be. Actually, conditions are never very favorable-never mind the long list of men and women who have completed the swim. To say that some scores of athletes have managed it is to say that some scores of assorted human beings have shown that they have what it takes to accomplish something close

There is more expert knowledge available these days of all the problems posed by the Channel than there used to be. That knowledge is a great help to the present-day hopeful. But anybody who can stroke strongly through cold water in a channel chop for upwards of 14 hours is a specimen the er arrives in Russia, he begins to race can be proud of. Marilyn Bell deserves a good hand and whatever rewards her feat brings to her. This is not a purely subjective

Good-Will

The slogan, "Peace and Prosperity," is appealing. Nobody is against either. Peace is wonderful, as Father and the hermitage in Leningrad, Divine discovered when he entered upon a career of with its marvelous collection of selling peace as a commodity. Prosperity adds to our material well-being and for a long time we have all been

In fact, whoever speaks ill of "Peace and Prosperity" confesses to being a crank, a shrew, a complainer, a harping critic. This makes it very tough for the Democrats who cannot say that they are against "Peace and Prosperity"; yet must try to defeat Eisenhower in 1956 if they are not to permit the Republicans really to become entrenched in Washington. It is so much easier to chop off hold-over heads in a second term than in a first. Besides, some people just die off or retire.

The Democrats are undoubtedly also embarrassed by Senator Walter George, a man highly respected and senior George has followed in the footsteps of Senators Vandenberg and Wiley, who, as chairmen of the Committee on Foreign Relations, felt the mantle of statesmanship fall upon them, and thereupon became supporters of the administration in power. Senator George goes a step further: he pronounces the Administration's policy before John Foster Dulles or the President get around

In fact, it would not be amiss to call the Era of Good-Will, the George Policy, as he has done so much to promote it and has put his high prestige behind it. The George Policy of Good-Will has been reciprocated by Nikita Khrushchev, so that realistically it might be called the George-Khruschev Policy of Peace on Earth, good-will to all men in our times. The ideal is noble and as President Eisenhower has made the most of it, surely it ought to re-elect him, which could do the Democrats no good.

If next year, nothing untoward happens, this George-Khrushchev Policy will have proved that those who believed that war would come between the United States and Soviet Russia were all wrong and President Eisenhower will be more popular than ever and will be re-elected and the Republicans will seed themselves down as a perennial power in Washington. In fact, President Eisenhower himself said as much at the Republican Ballyhoo Breakfast.

But no taxes are to be cut, and as Senator Bridges said, the budget must be balanced before we get a tax cut, which may happen after most of us have gone to our just deserts, which is not a pleasant thought. If we are so prosperous, why do not taxes go down? And shall we be making gifts to Khrushchev as we have made them to Tito out of the earnings of the taxpayers? Perhaps that is just one of those anxieties which come when the temperature rises into the upper nineties, but it does seem peculiar that when we have peace and prosperity, we do not cut taxes. The last time we had peace and prosperity, Coolidge was President and he did cut taxes. The Democrats might make an issue of that.

Now that Chou En-lai has gone in for good-will, it is almost complete. What we need to make itperfect is to find that Nehru's private devil, Krishna Menon, will go in for good-will and lustily sing out "The Star-Spangled Banner," which is more than one can hear at the Tanglewood concerts where last year there was an American flag but this year there is none. Perhaps it is characteristic of the era of good-will to put the American flag in moth-balls for the duration.

The release of the 11 airmen who have been held as hostages in Red China is being hailed as a manifestation of good-will, which it can only be hoped that it is. Now perhaps the 40 American civilians will be released and no American will be held anywhere as a hostage for his country. It ought to be so anyhow in this enlightened era. But this plagues the analytical mind: If the Geneva Conference between the United States and Red China was to deal only with the release of the 11 American prisoners and they have been released, why go on with this Conference? However, it is too hot this summer to ask too many questions.

Russia In Retrospect: The Thirst To Leave

This is the first of a series of re-ports summing up Stewart Alsop's experiences in the Soviet Union.

Almost as soon as the Westernfeel an aching thirst to leave it. reaction. It is universal, even among Westerners who find in Russia a fascination they can find nowhere else. And it is strange that there should be this thirst.

For there are many wonderful things in the Soviet Union. There is the juicy Russian bread and the fresh Russian butter, the best butter in the world, served in great dollops, at least to foreign visitors. There is the incomparable ballet; Rembrandts and French moderns; and the Kremlin itself, gay and beautiful in its coat of yellow paint. There are also, it must be said. the genuine achievements of the regime, in rebuilding a devastated

Finally, there are the Russian people. As long as they are not of. ficials and as long as they are not talking politics, they are as nice a people as you could find anywhere. They are amazingly courteous and kind, and at the same time they are a little mad, but mad in an entertaining and un-evil way, like characters in a Russian

Altogether, the universal phenomenon of the thirst to leave Russia is very difficult to understand. To begin to understand it is to understand something about the Soviet Union itself. Partly, of course, the thirst to leave derives from the simple fact that the Soviet Union is a police state. One old Russia hand says that there is not enough oxygen in the air here, which conveys some notion of the sense of suffocation induced by the all-pervading power of the state. Yet for the foreigner in the Soviet Union, there is no sense of personal danger at all. In these is always the margin for investidays, too, the Russian people gation.

greater sense of personal security than they have had in many years. The fact that Russia is a police state is by no means the whole explanation of the thirst to leave this

There are other bits and pieces of the explanation. There s the simple almost universal ugliness, for example. Private taste, of course, does not exist in the Soviet Union; not in the way we know it. The official taste is both atrocious and endlessly repeated, whether in the corrupt Corinthian style of Russian public architecture or in the nightmarish summer prints supplied to the unfortunate Russian ladies

Aside from the ballet and some art or literature in the Soviet Union is as much cut to a government approved pattern as the ladies' prints. It is utterly mysteri-themselves undoubtedly have a distance, a peculiar attraction in this uniform and ugly place.

Added to the ugliness, there is also the odd humorless stuffiness of life here. Take the story of the Austrian Ambassador and his dog. The ambassador recently applied through the Foreign Office for a suitable mate for his female cocker spaniel. There was a long delay, and when the ambassador inquired as to its eause, he was solemnly informed that it was difficult to find a Soviet citizen who owned a cocker spaniel and who had equal rank to an ambassador. Surely there has never been a society more pompously rank-conscious and class-consci-

Finally, there is the strangely oppressive feeling that there is something here you do not really understand, and can never understand. This feeling is shared by the most experienced Westerners, including the able ambassadors who brilliantly represent the three major Western powers here.

The sense of something utterly alien and wholly incomprehensible is everywhere in the Soviet Union, whether on a collective farm or in the pages of "Pravda." But this reporter felt it most strongly on a visit to the tomb of Lenin and

But this same ancient fanaticism wedded to a rigid and violent global political doctrine is something new, and something frightening. To the Western mind it may be beyond understanding, but it is to be feared as instinctively as a bird fears a cat. Perhaps that is the most important reason for the aching thirst to leave this country that Westerners feel.

WASHINGTON - While President Eisenhower talks about being the great friend of the Negro, his practice to fire prominent Negroes. Another key Negro adviser, Dr. Frank Horne, has just been fired from the Federal Housing Administration after 18 years of government service, after he disagreed with Housing Administrator Cole on segregation.

Cole has been arguing that Negroes should not press for integration on federal housing projects now, regardless of the Supreme Court decree against segregation. Dr. Horne has disagreed.

So the other day, despite his 18 years in government, Horne got his walking papers, effective August 31. The official reason given was "budget trouble." Real fact. however, is that the Housing Administration has more money today than ever, and is hiring new peo-

What Washington needs more than anything else today is a good investigation of lobbying.

Lobbyists ran wild in the recent session of the 84th Congress. They also ran the Congress. They were bold, blunt, brazen in their demands that Congressmen vote this way and vote that. They didn't even bother to disguise their dictator-

He also received $5,000 from Jack Porter of Texas. Senator Price Daniel of Texas. who also collected heavy campaign funds from oil and gas, began the first move in passing the natural gas bill. The drive for passage was planned so carefully that nine months ago, Daniel demanded of his Texas colleague, Senator Lyndon Johnson, that he, Daniel, be placed on the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

The gas bill is aimed at overruling the Supreme Court's decree that natural gas shipped between states must be subject to regulation by the Federal Power Commission just as railroad rates be-

Grass Roots Lobbying

That was the first long-range step in the carefully planned lobbying strategy. Next was the lobbying of grass-roots sentiment. Here is an example of how it worked. Out in San Bernardino, California, a long way from Washington, a representative of the Shell Oil Company telephoned Mrs. O. E. Smelser. He said a mutual friend had recommended her name as a prominent worker for good causes.

Mrs. Smelser agreed to see the Shell Oil Company, not realizing he was a lobbyist, and he explained that Shell Oil was forming committees of very important persons in different communities for civic work. These committees were to wage an educational campaign to inform the public that price regulation of gas at the wells was contrary to the American system of free enterprise. Committees were to be formed of prominent citizens belonging to service organizations who could influence the public and the Congress and the local press, the Shell representative explained. He wanted seven persons on the committee. six men and one woman. He tried to flatter Mrs. Smelser into becoming the one woman. 'All you have to do is to spread propaganda in favor of repealing the federal law," he said. "It is most important to educate the public at once because the set-up in Congress is good for the purpose of repealing this law."

Mrs. Smelser is a civic-minded lady who does not believe in setting up committees to increase the price of gas to her fellow housewives. She refused to cooperate.

But all over the nation, less gullible ladies were organized by the oil-gas companies to influence Congress in order to pass a bill which would raise the price of natural gas by several million dollars annually. More about the devious and intricate operation of this and other lobbies will follow soon

If we are so prosperous, why do not taxes go down? And shall we be making gifts to Khrushchev as we have made them to Tito out of the earnings of the taxpayers? Perhaps that is just one of those anxieties which come when the temperature rises into the upper nineties, but it does seem peculiar that when we have peace and prosperity, we do not cut taxes. The last time we had peace and prosperity, Coolidge was President and he did cut taxes. The Democrats might make an issue of that.

Now that Chou En-lai has gone in for good-will, it is almost complete. What we need to make itperfect is to find that Nehru's private devil, Krishna Menon, will go in for good-will and lustily sing out "The Star-Spangled Banner," which is more than one can hear at the Tanglewood concerts where last year there was an American flag but this year there is none. Perhaps it is characteristic of the era of good-will to put the American flag in moth-balls for the duration.

The release of the 11 airmen who have been held as hostages in Red China is being hailed as a manifestation of good-will, which it can only be hoped that it is. Now perhaps the 40 American civilians will be released and no American will be held anywhere as a hostage for his country. It ought to be so anyhow in this enlightened era. But this plagues the analytical mind: If the Geneva Conference between the United States and Red China was to deal only with the release of the 11 American prisoners and they have been released, why go on with this Conference? However, it is too hot this summer to ask too many questions. (Copyright, 1955, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Changing Scene-Advent Of The Power Mower

Russia In Retrospect: The Thirst To Leave

This is the first of a series of re-ports summing up Stewart Alsop's experiences in the Soviet Union, which he brought out with him from

Almost as soon as the Westerner arrives in Russia, he begins to feel an aching thirst to leave it. This is not a purely subjective reaction. It is universal, even among Westerners who find in Russia a fascination they can find nowhere else. And it is strange that there should be this thirst. For there are many wonderful things in the Soviet Union. There is the juicy Russian bread and the fresh Russian butter, the best butter in the world, served in great dollops, at least to foreign visitors. Rembrandts and French moderns; and the Kremlin itself, gay and beautiful in its coat of yellow paint. There are also, it must be said. the genuine achievements of the regime, in rebuilding a devastated

Finally, there are the Russian people. As long as they are not officials and as long as they are not talking politics, they are as nice a people as you could find anywhere. They are amazingly courteous and kind, and at the same time they are a little mad, but mad in an entertaining and un-evil way, like characters in a Russian

Altogether, the universal phenomenon of the thirst to leave Russia is very difficult to understand. To begin to understand it is to understand something about the Soviet Union itself.

Partly, of course, the thirst to leave derives from the simple fact that the Soviet Union is a police state. One old Russia hand says that there is not enough oxygen in the air here, which conveys some notion of the sense of suffocation induced by the all-pervading power of the state.

Yet for the foreigner in the Soviet Union, there is no sense of personal danger at all. In these By Stewart Alsop themselves undoubtedly have a greater sense of personal security than they have had in many years. The fact that Russia is a police state is by no means the whole explanation of the thirst to leave this

There are other bits and pieces of the explanation. There is the simple almost universal ugliness, for example. Private taste, of course, does not exist in the Soviet Union; not in the way we know it. The official taste is both atrocious and endlessly repeated. whether in the corrupt Corinthian style of Russian public architecture or in the nightmarish summer prints supplied to the unfortunate Russian ladies. Aside from the hallet theater and music, what passes for art or literature in the Soviet Union is as much cut to a government approved pattern as the ladies' prints. It is utterly mysterious that so many Western intellectuals and artists should find, at a distance, a peculiar attraction in this uniform and ugly place. Added to the ugliness, there is also the odd humorless stuffiness of life here. Take the story of the Austrian Ambassador and his dog. The ambassador recently applied through the Foreign Office for a suitable mate for his female cocker spaniel. There was a long delay, and when the ambassador inguired as to its eause, he was solemnly informed that it was difficult to find a Soviet citizen who owned a cocker spaniel and who had equal rank to an ambassador. Surely there has never been a society more pompously rank-conscious and class-consci-tion which all foreigners feel here. Foreigners are cut off from normal contact with Russians not only by the state and the language barrier but by the ideological Iron Curtain. It is almost impossible to have a serious political conver-

Finally, there is the strangely oppressive feeling that there is something here you do not really understand, and can never understand. This feeling is shared by the most experienced Westerners, including the able ambassadors who brilliantly represent the three major Western powers here.

The sense of something utterly alien and wholly incomprehensible is everywhere in the Soviet Union. whether on a collective farm or in the pages of "Pravda." But this reporter felt it most strongly on a visit to the tomb of Lenin and

It is a macabre experience to see the waxy, powerful faces of the old revolutionary and the ruthless dictator preserved under glass in the chilly underground dampness, while the Russians shuffle by in an unending line, staring silently at their dead masters. If you look closely, you can see that the bodies of both men are false-only the heads and hands, severed from the bodies, have been preserved. Here surely is a phenomenon which is not only macabre but also incomprehensible to the Western

But this same ancient fanaticism wedded to a rigid and violent global political doctrine is something new, and something frightening. To the Western mind it may be beyond understanding, but it is to be feared as instinctively as a bird fears a cat. Perhaps that is the most important reason for the aching thirst to leave this country that Many communities are now busy cutting or killing every ragweed in sight. This noxious plant is Public Enemy No. 1 to 10 million-American hay fever victims. Are ragweed eradication programs practical? Many authorities are convinced they are not and go so fields across the state. It also may come from neighboring towns that do not have a control program. Pollen surveys' conducted in areas where the project is carried on show high concentrations and allergists continue to be bombarded by sneezing patients with stopped up nasal passages and itching, swollen, watery eyes.

A study conducted by the Am-

Diseases proved the plan was futile. This organization suggested that money now spent for these projects be used instead for research on finding basic causes and effective treatment of hay fever. Various militant lay organizations and chemical concerns, however, believe ragweed control programs are worth while. Pollen concentration is highest in the immediate vicinity, and destroying the weeds reduces the concentration slightly. In this respect, every little bit helps. Furthermore, the program can be integrated with spraying to control caterpillars, tree diseases, and weeds other than ragweed.

Moreover, killing ragweed decreases the number of seeds for next year's crop. This in turn permits the growth of grasses and other plants so that a more stabilized vegetation develops. Ragweed seeds buried in dry sand may remain viable for 40 years. This may explain why hundreds of weeds shoot up on every bare patch of ground. Both giant and small ragweed are easy to destroy with dilute solutions of 2. 4-D. Even though the mixture is weak, care should be taken not to spray flowers, vegetables, hedges, and trees. Ninety per cent of the foliage should be drenched by the chemical. As with other weeds, best results are ob-

This controversy indicates that most hay fever victims must rely upon other measures to control sneezing until the time comes when all ragweed is eliminated. Complete eradication sounds impossible, considering that a single plant produces up to 8 billion granules a season, each a potential off-

> And since the Congress is not likely to probe the way its own members were lobbied, at least not in the present big business atmosphere that pervades Washington, this column will attempt to do some probing

Let's begin with the two above mentioned lobbies.

The lobbying of ex-Congressman Clippinger can be described in a few words. The gas lobby's activities would take more space than is available to the average newsgust 31. The official reason given paper

Clippinger is the manager of a toll bridge between Illinois and Indiana and didn't want Congress to investigate what disposition had been made of $3,000,000 collected in tolls since 1942. A Congressional committee headed by Congressman Denton of Indiana is now looking

So Clippinger, who as a former member of Congress has the right to appear on the House floor, frantically darted from Congressman to Congressman during debate trying to prevent the probe of the bridge which he manages. He was not successful. Finally Joe Martin told him politely to leave the floor. Gas Lobby

The natural gas lobby at times was more devious, also more effective. It had at its disposal a slush fund of $1,500,000, and it operated both in the grass roots and by direct contribution to the political campaigns of Senators and Congressmen.

For instance, Senator John Butler of Maryland, Republican, who at first planned to introduce the bill exempting natural gas from federal regulation, had received $10,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Clint Murchison, the big Texas gas-oil tycoon, during his election campaign. He also received $5,000 from Jack Porter of Texas.

Senator Price Daniel of Texas, who also collected heavy campaign funds from oil and gas, began the first move in passing the natural gas bill. The drive for passage was planned so carefully that nine months ago, Daniel demanded of his Texas colleague, Senator Lyndon Johnson, that he. Daniel, be placed on the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

The gas bill is aimed at overruling the Supreme Court's decree that natural gas shipped between states must be subject to regulation by the Federal Power Commission just as railroad rates beInterstate Commerce Commission. So Daniel wanted to be on the Interstate Commerce Committee which would handle the natural gas bill. Two years before, Daniel had demanded to be on the Interior Committee which handled the Tidelands Oil Bill, but now that Tidelands Oil was handed back to Texas and the coastal states, that job was finished and Senator Daniel wanted to shift. And though Senator Lehman of New York had seniority. and though seniority is supposed to be omnipotent in the Senate, the gas lobby was even more omnipotent, Daniel got the key post.

Grass Roots Lobbying

That was the first long-range step in the carefully planned lobbying strategy. Next was the lobbying of grass-roots sentiment. Here is an example of how it worked.

nia, a long way from Washington, a representative of the Shell Oil Company telephoned Mrs. O. E. Smelser. He said a mutual friend had recommended her name as a prominent worker for good causes.

Mrs. Smelser agreed to see the Shell Oil Company, not realizing he was a lobbyist, and he explained that Shell Oil was forming committees of very important persons in different communities for civic work. These committees were to wage an educational campaign to inform the public that price regulation of gas at the wells was contrary to the American system of free enterprise. Committees were to be formed of prominent citizens belonging to service organizations who could influence the public and the Congress and the local press, the Shell representative explained. He wanted seven persons on the committee, six men and one woman. He tried to flatter Mrs. Smelser into becoming the one woman.

'All you have to do is to spread propaganda in favor of repealing the federal law," he said. "It is most important to educate the public at once because the set-up in Congress is good for the purpose of repealing this law.

Mrs. Smelser is a civic-minded lady who does not believe in setting up committees to increase the price of gas to her fellow housewives. She refused to cooperate.

But all over the nation, less gullible ladies were organized by the oil-gas companies to influence Congress in order to pass a bill which would raise the price of natural gas by several million dollars annually. More about the devious and intricate operation of this and other lobbies will follow soon.

With its high land, "air - conditioned" streets, and island location, it has a wonderful all-year climate, a beautiful harbor, and a bright future. My father had a dry goods and novelty store here 50 years ago. This little store my family has built up to some 450 stores located in 38 states, under the corporate ownership of the United Stores Corporation. In fact, its stock is

DeWitt M. Emery One reason for writing this column today is the death at Evanston, Ill. of the founder of the National Small Business Men's Association, DeWitt M. Emery. He died at the young age of 59, having given his life to the unselfish work of encouraging young persons to start a business for themselves. He claimed that cities are now making a great mistake in depending only upon large manufacturing corporations owned in New York or some other large city. He believed it is like a church expecting to prosper without a Sunday School - or even like a family expecting to prosper without children. Also much is owed to Ernest Gaunt.

Yet things are happening today which could benefit the "small businessman. " First, the federal ta laws have been amended to as a rule—do not bother the to his trade

GLOUCESTER, Mass. - I am small "independent operator," hoping that their members themselves may some day be one. Increasing the minimum national wage to one dollar will probably exempt a small operator or storekeeper. This could be an advantage to the small manufacturer with lower overhead and fewer employes.

> Importance of Personal Service I forecast that some people will always want personal attention from specialists whom they know and trust. I believe in pensions, modern factories, and air conditioning, but these things will not take the place of personal attention by interested employes. People like attention; they want to deal with owners of a business whom they know and trust. Most employes are today missing a great opportunity to become truly interested in the success of the busi> ness in which they are employed. The increasing congestion of automobiles (due to the dumbness of local city governments in not providing employers with sufficient off-street parking lots) is causing many families to move to other areas to get work. The parking nuisance, however, will give young businessmen an opportunity to call at homes and take orders for goods. More business will be done in the evenings. "Wagon-peddlers" will increase in number and usefulness. I forecast that the cycle of the past 100 years from familyowned little businesses to big corporations will gradually reverse and return to small specialty factories. Lessons From Abroad

Every time I go to Europe I am impressed by the number of families who live on their business and are thus able to give "24 hour" service. Were I a young man and had a good wife, this is the way I would start, instead of working for a big company. Or, better still, I should try working for, and some day own, a smalltown newspaper! I surely would go into some form of merchandising or advertising where I could use new ideas and be an individual, and not get into a rut. A small manufacturer or shopkeeper. however, willing to work and having a good turnover, need not fear sudden changes and new methods. Many of them can work give him a break. In 1949, members of the church decided to enlarge the structure. Plans and estimates for an educational building were presented to the Fourth Quarterly Conference by J. W. Ritchie, and approved. A. A. Albright and Ritchie were elected to supervise the work and construction started May 1, 1950. The educational building addition was completed November 1, 1954, again with the cooperation of members and friends of the congregation

The church has an interesting background and has served as a steady and consistent influence for good in the Narrow Park area. Older members commenting upon the church and its history recall that it was built by a contractor named McGill, whose descendants are still well known builders and contractors. They recall too, that he first choir director was Randolph Deremer, one of those who

It is also recalled that one of the early preachers at the church was the father of John Charles Thomas, who at that time was the Methodist minister at Mt. Savage out frequently filled the pulpit a

The educational building addition was completed November 1, 1954, again with the cooperation of members and friends of the congregation

The church has an interesting background and has served as a steady and consistent influence for good in the Narrow Park area. Older members commenting upon the church and its history recall that it was built by a contractor named McGill, whose descendants are still well known builders and contractors. They recall too, that the first choir director was Randolph Deremer, one of those who helped establish the church. It is also recalled that one of the early preachers at the church was the father of John Charles Thomas, who at that time was the Methodist minister at Mt. Savage, but frequently filled the pulpit at Park Place. The church now has an active enrollment of over 300, with 29 classes in the Sunday school.

Lightning Hits Young's Home At Barton

Residence Badly Damaged By Fire

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Olie Young, on Temperance Row in Barton, was damaged by fire to the extent of several thousand dollars yesterday afternoon after it was struck by lightning.

A modern frame bungalow, built about six or seven years ago, the house was gutted and charred throughout most of the interior. while the entire house was damaged by smoke and water. Nobody was in the house at the time.

Two trucks from the Barton Volunteer Hose Company were summoned to the scene shortly after 2 p. m. during an intense rain, lightning and thunder storm. Firemen laid several hundred feet of hose to Georges Creek and pumped water for more than an hour in order to control the flames.

Firemen reported that a bolt of lightning seemed to have struck the main fuse box or the power line leading into it. The fire which resulted spread rapidly, until most of the interior was charred. Furniture also was badly damaged, and the house will need a thorough remodeling before it is again inhabitable, they noted.

Young has been employed at the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company plant at Luke for several years. He said the loss is only partly covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Young are the parents of Ronald "Butch" Young, well known Valley High School basketball star. At the time the lightning struck, Young was at the baseball field, just adjacent to their residence, watching his son Ronald participate in an afternoon baseball game. They had gone into the baseball dugout when they heard the terrific clap of thunde

Residence Badly Damaged By Fire

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Olie Young, on Temperance Row in Barton, was damaged by fire to the extent of several thousand dollars yesterday afternoon after it was struck by lightning.

A modern frame bungalow, built about six or seven years ago, the house was gutted and charred throughout most of the interior, while the entire house was damaged by smoke and water. Nobody was in the house at the time.

Two trucks from the Barton Volunteer Hose Company were summoned to the scene shortly after 2 p. m. during an intense rain, lightning and thunder storm. Firemen laid several hundred feet of hose to Georges Creek and pumped water for more than an hour in order to control the flames.

Firemen reported that a bolt of lightning seemed to have struck the main fuse box or the power line leading into it. The fire which resulted spread rapidly, until most of the interior was charred. Furniture also was badly damaged, and the house will need a thorough remodeling before it is again inhabitable, they noted.

Young has been employed at the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company plant at Luke for several years. He said the loss is only partly covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Young are the parents of Ronald "Butch" Young well known Valley High School basketball star. At the time the lightning struck, Young was at the baseball field, just adjacent to their residence, watching his son Ronald participate in an afternoon baseball game. They had gone into the baseball dugout when they heard the terrific clap of thunde and saw a brilliant flash. moment or two later, someon discovered the Young's home ha
